New York City Performing Arts Centre, Inc.

a different approach to teaching dance offering a number of different dance classes. From ballet, tap, and hip hop to theatre classes, there is a learning experience at NYCPAC for everyone from as early as 3 years old to adult age.

One of the major concerns Chris and Kimberly have heard from parents in the past regarding dance studios is the instructor's past education and experience.

Parents are very critical of the fact that a number of their children's instructors were current students or young adults with no formal technical training. The instructors at NYCPAC are highly educated in dance and drama. Instructors are alumni from New York's most prestigious and impressive schools: Fiorella H. LaGuardia High School of Music & Art & Performing Arts (THE FAME SCHOOL) and the Julliard School.

Some of the graduates of these schools are Jennifer Aniston, Ben Vereen, Liza Minnelli and James Moody to name a few.

Dance technique is extremely important if that is your future career choice. Whether you dance on Broadway, a major concert show or develop choreography, the fundamentals of dance are the stepping stones you need to improve your skills. NYCPAC drama teachers encourage students with positive reinforcement and acting education to perfect any acting talent. Getting students to feel comfortable in front of an audience is an important aspect for any aged child. The teachers at NYCPAC have the background and experience necessary to enhance any young actor's skills. You may have the next upcoming television or movie star in your family and early inspiration and education is key.

NYCPAC is a dance studio that's takes a different approach to teaching dance. Teach the basic fundamentals of dance before preparing children for a competition routine. When given the opportunity to be taught formal dance techniques, students will be disciplined and the artistic creative process will follow. If your child is looking for a dance studio that emphasizes teaching dance and/or drama education, NYCPAC is where you should inquire.

Ever wonder how students learn formal dance techniques when all they ever seem to be doing is practicing for a competition? Are you looking for a dance studio that has instructors with formal dance training rather than a studio teaching your children dance with limited experience?

Look no further than New York City Performing Arts Centre Inc. (NYCPAC) in Toms River.

Chris & Kimberly Recchia, owners for the past seven years, started their studio with exactly that type of philosophy in mind. Teach the proper formal techniques to further students dance education and expand their artistic creativity. If you watched the television show "Can You Dance?", you saw which performers were exceptional dancers and went further in the competition due to their dance training and which performers were just "good" dancers. At NYCPAC, they want their students to enjoy the classes and have fun while at the same time learn the proper technique. Most important to Chris, Kimberly and their instructors is teaching "dance". The staff has the education, training, and experience to teach all forms of dance. It is a non-competitive school
