got dance?

By Suzie Sutter

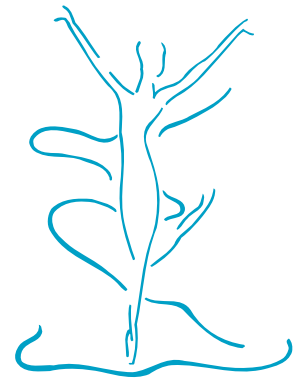

New York City Performing Arts Centre Inc. (NYCPAC) is a drama and dance studio operating under the philosophy of "learning while having fun..." and keeping their students "excited about learning..." Christopher and Kimberly Recchia have been running the NYCPAC for the last seven years in Toms River.

All children, both girls and boys ages 3 thru adult, can find something at this much diversified performing arts center. There is a class for everyone; whether you're interested in the fundamental movements of ballet to achieve the graceful look of a prima ballerina; or the smooth sounding, effortless looking tap dancer; to the hardcore get down and pump it Hip Hop. From Broadway style Classic Jazz to Modern Dance that portrays the abstract movement and style of Martha Graham; all will find a class to satisfy them. Perhaps your child dreams to be on stage but not interested in practicing ballet or jazz? There are also Theatre Arts classes. Experienced instructors, who have paved the careers of many working professionals, share the knowledge of their craft to complete the NYCPAC Experience.

The background of the dance and drama teachers is impressive. The staff is comprised of alumni from LaGuardia High School of Music & Art & Performing Arts (THE FAME SCHOOL), The Juilliard School, Pennsylvania Ballet, Atlanta Ballet, and The Metropolitan Opera House at Lincoln Center. These highly skilled and educated instructors bring the art of dance to a small community at the Jersey Shore.

NYCPAC is a non-competitive school. Learning technique and choreography culminate at a yearend finale performance at the Historic Strand Theatre to showcase their young talent. Make-up, costumes and perfectly manicured hair provide enough glitz to portray them as stars.

NYCPAC can also plan a birthday celebration for any age child. If you have exhausted ideas for your child's birthday party, let NYCPAC customize the entire event. A fun two hours of loud music, dance routines, singing and food are the ingredients to a successful party. Imagine their favorite song blasting throughout the room, having a dance routine choreographed specifically for them and their friends, as well as the huge full wall mirror to visualize the dance routine as a whole. There are a number of large rooms to accommodate any size party.

The ages of dancers range from 3 years old thru adult. Ana Hicks' daughter, five year old Gabriella, has been with NYCPAC for the last three years and says her daughter "loves it and looks forward to coming every week." Brooke Pittman, 13 years old, has been coming for four years and takes Hip Hop and Musical Theatre classes. She says "It's really good. The teachers are great and it's fun to perform!"

NYCPAC and their staff are driven to ensure their classes inspire, challenge, and teach proper technique. However, more importantly, NYCPAC strives to keep class's fun, entertaining and remembering the focus is on the children. NYCPAC and their staff of teachers have the education, experience and training to fulfill any child's ambition of dance or theater.
